University of Cantabria at a glance

Santander

Santander is a coastal city that grew in 19th century thanks to a flourishing commercial activity and also throughout the 20th century thanks to tourist activity promoted by the Spanish Royal Family.

It currently offers a friendly atmosphere within an outstanding natural setting with large beaches and attractive promenades.

All these features make Santander a comfortable city to live in, with a wide range of cultural and sport attractions.

Living in Cantabria and Santander

The city of Santander is located in the region of Cantabria, which lies on the northern coast of Spain between Asturias and the Basque Country.

This region stands out because of the great diversity of its environment. The coastal landscape of its beaches, bays and cliffs blends together with valleys and highland areas.

The surrounding nature and historical importance of many of its villages and buildings make this region very appealing for tourism, especially during the summer season.
